

ACFB COMMERCIAL- 2011

OK. I know what you're thinking: "What next"?

And you've probably been thinking that since the start of all this unspeakable horror. Yes- we all agree, we've been listening to some pretty horrible stories here tonight. Full of the humanly impossible, the unexplainable, or the supernatural, the alien, like some unseen sinister evil lurking in the unforeseeable future. Well, you can't say that we didn't warn you, right? But you want to hear something really horrible, one that can strike fear into the hearts of millions? And it's right here- among us- even now. Hunger. How about a family that goes hungry because Dad with 2 part-time jobs can't make ends meet? Workin' that night shift, too. A foster mother taking care of a rescued child. I mean, what does it take to escape the slithering shadow of doubt and despair that tries to creep in? What can help hold that evil at bay? You got it. The ACFB. The Atlanta Community Food Bank. It's here. Thank our lucky stars, the ACFB is here, alive and living and breathing. Lending a helping hand, even as YOU are lending a helpful ear. So lend the ACFB a helping hand. And KEEP giving to the ACFB. Because every time you do, you're helping a neighbor. Someone who's a part of our community. A friend in need. It takes a village, some say. Hey, they've even got "community" in their name. The Atlanta Community Food Bank. Give 'em a hand. And let's all try to cut down- on the "horrible".